

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Ashwant Singh, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

Batteries Plus, L.L.C., et al.,

Defendants.

No. 2:24-cv-00223-KJM-DB

ORDER

In this dispute arising out of a franchise agreement, defendants move to compel arbitration and to dismiss the action or stay the case pending arbitration. For the reasons below, the court grants the motion.

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiff Ashwant Singh is the owner and operator of plaintiff Clean Future Technologies, LLC. Ashwant Decl. at 2, ECF No. 9-6.¹ Defendant Batteries Plus, LLC, a Wisconsin limited liability company, owns a national franchise that operates and franchises over 600 retail stores under the “Batteries Plus” trademark. Daher Decl. ¶ 3, ECF No. 8-8; see Franchise Agreement at 4, Pls.’ Ex. 1, ECF No. 9-1. Batteries Plus retail stores sell batteries, light bulbs and other related items and also offer device repair and other related services. Daher Decl. ¶ 3. At all relevant

1 times, defendants Victor Daher and Jason Edward Moss were respectively the Vice President of 2 Franchise Development, id. ¶ 1, and Director of Real Estate and Acquisitions for Batteries Plus, 3 id. ¶ 4.

4 On January 31, 2022, Singh received a copy of Batteries Plus’s 2021 Franchise Disclosure 5 Document (FDD). Singh Decl. ¶ 3; FDD Email, Pls.’ Ex. 2, ECF No. 9-2; 2021 FDD, Pls.’ Ex.
 6 3.² The FDD included information regarding purchasing a franchise and summarized relevant 7 information, including certain provisions of the Franchise Agreement. See generally 2021 FDD.
 8 Singh declares no one explained the 2021 FDD contained a copy of the Franchise Agreement, 9 which started on page 155 of the FDD. Singh Decl. ¶ 5; see 2021 Agreement Copy, 2021 FDD
 10 Ex. C. In the email containing the 2021 FDD, a Batteries Plus representative explains the FDD 11 “is an important document that provides you with information about our company, the franchise 12 that we offer, and our franchise system.” FDD Email. The email explains that to provide 13 prospective franchisees “sufficient opportunity to fully review the FDD and perform [] due 14 diligence about [the] company and the franchise offer, the law imposes a required minimum 15 waiting period between” the time when a prospective franchisee receives the FDD and when the 16 prospective franchisee may first execute a franchise agreement or pay Batteries Plus any money.
 17 Id. The Federal Trade Commission requires a fourteen-day waiting period. See 16 C.F.R.
 18 § 436.2(a); see 2021 FDD Receipt, 2021 FDD Ex. H.

19 The 2021 FDD summarizes certain provisions of the Franchise Agreement and advises 20 potential franchisees to consult an advisor and to read the document and “all accompanying 21 agreements carefully.” 2021 FDD at ii.³ On page v, the 2021 FDD notes in bold “Special Risks 22 to Consider About This Franchise” and includes the following provision:

23 Out-of-State Dispute Resolution. The franchise agreement 24 requires you to resolve disputes with the franchisor by mediation,

² Plaintiffs lodged with the court the signed 2021 FDD, Pls.’ Ex. 3, and 2022 FDD, Pls.’ Ex. 5, in USB format because the .pdf documents were protected. See Notice of Lodging, ECF No. 10. Defendants have filed an unsigned copy of the 2022 FDD on the docket. See Unsigned 2022 FDD, Douth Decl. Ex. D, ECF No. 8-5.

1 arbitration, and/or litigation only in Wisconsin. Out-of-state 2 mediation, arbitration, or litigation may force you to accept a less 3 favorable settlement for disputes. It may also cost you more to 4 mediate, arbitrate, or litigate with the franchisor in Wisconsin than 5 in your own state.

6 Id. at v (emphasis in original). The 2021 FDD includes a table of contents, which lists 7 “RENEWAL, TERMINATION, TRANSFER AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION” as Item 17, and 8 includes a list of attached exhibits, including the Franchise Agreement. Id. at viii (emphasis in 9 original). Item 17, in turn, includes a table of “certain important provisions of the franchise and 10 related agreement.” Id. at 39 (emphasis omitted). Within Item 17, provision “u,” “Dispute 11 resolution by arbitration or mediation,” reads: “Except for actions we bring for monies owed, 12 injunctive or extraordinary relief, or actions involving real estate, all disputes first will be subject 13 to non-binding mediation at our headquarters in Hartland, Wisconsin, then (if not resolved) to 14 binding arbitration in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.” Id. at 42. Provision “w” describes the choice of 15 law provision, which states the Franchise Agreement will apply the law in which the franchisee’s 16 store is located. Id. Exhibit C of the 2021 FDD includes a copy of a Franchise Agreement. 2021
 17 Agreement Copy. The copy includes a table of contents, listing Section 19: “DISPUTE 18 RESOLUTION.” Id. at i. Section 19, which starts on page 30 of the agreement, includes both a 19 provision about mediation and a separate provision about arbitration. Id. at 30–31.

20 On April 18, 2022, prior to signing any agreement, Singh made a wire transfer of $9,900 21 to Batteries Plus as part of the first installment of the franchise fee. Singh Decl. ¶ 6; see Initial 22 Payment, Pls.’ Ex. 4, ECF No. 9-3. A week later on April 25, 2022, Batteries Plus sent Singh the 23 2022 FDD without explaining why it was sending Singh a second FDD. Singh Decl. ¶ 7; 2022
 24 FDD. The relevant parts of the 2022 FDD are identical to the 2021 FDD and include disclosures
 25 regarding the arbitration clause and a copy of the Franchise Agreement. Compare 2022 FDD 26 with 2021 FDD. Singh signed and dated an acknowledgement of receipt of both FDDs. See 2021 27 FDD Receipt; 2022 FDD Receipt, 2022 FDD Ex. H. The receipts acknowledge receipt of the 28 FDDs and exhibits including a copy of the Franchise Agreement. See 2021 FDD Receipt; 2022 29 FDD Receipt.

Then on May 10, 2022, a Batteries Plus representative sent a copy of the Franchise Agreement to Singh for his signature. Singh Decl. ¶ 8. Defendant Daher, who as noted above was the Vice President of Franchise Development for Batteries Plus at all relevant times, Daher Decl. ¶ 1, sent Singh a text message instructing him to “click through and complete if you can tonight and submit the fees that we’ve agreed upon by tomorrow,” Singh Decl. ¶ 9; Text Message, Pls.’ Ex. 6, ECF No. 9-4. Based on this text message, Singh declares “it was my understanding that I needed to quickly complete all the paperwork within one day to secure my franchise.” Singh Decl. ¶ 10. Both the franchisor, Batteries Plus, and the franchisee, Singh, signed the agreement the same day. See Franchise Agreement at 2, 37. The agreement provides, in relevant part, as follows: “This Agreement is binding upon the parties and their respective executors, administrators, heirs, assigns, and successors in interest, and . . . [e]xcept as provided above, this Agreement is not intended, and will not be deemed, to confer any rights or remedies upon any person or legal entity not a party to this Agreement.” Id. at 35.

The Franchise Agreement Singh signed included a blank table of contents. Id. at 3. Like the copies of the franchise agreement attached to the 2021 and 2022 FDDs, Section 19 covered “DISPUTE RESOLUTION.” Id. at 33 (emphasis in original). Section 19(A) includes a provision regarding mediation. Id. Section 19(B) includes an arbitration provision, which provides in relevant part:

Arbitration. Except to the extent Franchisor elects to enforce the provisions of this Agreement by injunction as provided in Section 19(C) below, all disputes, claims and controversies between the parties arising under or in connection with this Agreement or the making, performance or interpretation thereof (including claims of fraud in the inducement and other claims of fraud in the arbitrability of any matter) that have not been settled by or are not otherwise subject to mediation . . . will be resolved by arbitration on an individual basis under the authority of the Federal Arbitration Act in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Any arbitration proceeding may not be consolidated with any other arbitration proceeding, and Franchisee agrees not to seek joinder of any of its claims with those of any other party. The arbitrator(s) shall have no authority to select a different hearing locale for the arbitration. The arbitrator(s) will have a minimum of five (5) years’ experience in franchising or distribution law and will have the right to award specific performance of this

Agreement. The proceedings will be conducted under the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association, or the rules of such other arbitration services organization as the parties otherwise may agree upon in writing, to the extent such rules are not inconsistent with the provisions of this arbitration provision or the Federal Arbitration Act. The decision of the arbitrator(s) will be final and binding on all parties; provided, however, the arbitrator(s) may not under any circumstances: (i) stay the effectiveness of any pending termination of this Agreement; (ii) assess punitive or exemplary damages; or (iii) make any award which extends, modifies or suspends any lawful term of this Agreement or any reasonable standard of business performance set by Franchisor

Id. at 33–34. Section 19(C) in turn provides in relevant part:

[I]f Franchisee breaches or threatens to breach any of the terms of this Agreement, Franchisor will be entitled to an injunction restraining such breach and/or a decree of specific performance, without showing or proving any actual damage, together with recovery of reasonable attorneys’ fees and other costs incurred in obtaining such equitable relief, until such time as a final and binding determination is made by the arbitrators.

Id. at 34.

The Franchise Agreement includes a choice of law provision and provides the agreement “will be governed by and construed under the laws of the state in which the Store is located, without regard to any conflict of laws principles of such state.” Id. at 34. The provision also states, “Franchisee waives, to the fullest extent permitted by law, the rights and protections that might be provided through any state franchise or business opportunity laws, other than those of the state in which the Store is located.” Id. at 34–35. Finally, the agreement includes a punitive damages waiver provision in which both the franchisor and franchisee agree to waive “TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, THE RIGHT TO OR A CLAIM FOR ANY PUNITIVE OR EXEMPLARY DAMAGES AGAINST THE OTHER AND AGREE THAT IN THE EVENT OF ANY DISPUTE BETWEEN THEM, EACH WILL BE LIMITED TO THE RECOVERY OF ACTUAL DAMAGES SUSTAINED BY IT.” Id. at 35 (emphasis in original). These provisions were included in the copies of the franchise agreement attached as exhibits to

1 both the 2021 and the 2022 FDD. See 2021 Agreement Copy; 2022 Agreement Copy, 2022 FDD
 2 Ex. C.

3 Singh was not represented by counsel at the time he signed the Franchise Agreement, and 4 he declares he “did not have any opportunity to negotiate any of the provisions,” including the 5 arbitration provision. Singh Decl. ¶ 11. He further declares the Franchise Agreement “was 6 presented as ‘take it or leave it’” and his understanding was if he did not sign it, he would be 7 unable to purchase a franchise. Id. Singh also declares the Franchise Agreement he signed did 8 not include a Table of Contents, he was unaware of the arbitration provision, which was included 9 in the 57-page Franchise Agreement, and no one explained the legal or practical effects of the 10 provision. Id. ¶¶ 12–13. At no point did Singh contest the dispute resolution terms of the 11 Franchise Agreement. Daher Decl. ¶ 5; Opp’n at 9, ECF No. 9 (conceding “[p]laintiff did not 12 expressly contest the Arbitration Provision prior to signing the Franchise Agreement”).

12 II. LEGAL STANDARD

13 “The FAA reflects the fundamental principle that arbitration is a matter of contract.”
 14 Rent-A-Ctr., W., Inc. v. Jackson, 561 U.S. 63, 67 (2010). The FAA provides arbitration 15 agreements “shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds as exist at law 16 or in equity for the revocation of any contract[.]” 9 U.S.C. § 2. “By its terms, the Act leaves no 17 place for the exercise of discretion by a district court, but instead mandates that district courts 18 shall direct the parties to proceed to arbitration on issues as to which an arbitration agreement has 19 been signed.” Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Byrd, 470 U.S. 213, 218 (1985) (emphasis in 20 original) (citing 9 U.S.C. §§ 3, 4). However, as with any other contract, an arbitration agreement 21 “may be invalidated by ‘generally applicable contract defenses, such as fraud, duress, or 22 unconscionability.’” Rent-A-Ctr., 561 U.S. at 68 (quoting Dr. ’s Assocs., Inc. v. Casarotto, 23 517 U.S. 681, 687 (1996)). Additionally, because “[t]he right to compel arbitration stems from a 24 contractual right[,]. . . [a]n entity that is neither a party to nor agent for nor beneficiary of the 25 contract lacks standing to compel arbitration[.]” Britton v. Co-op Banking Grp., 4 F.3d 742, 744 26 (9th Cir. 1993).

27 “A party seeking to compel arbitration has the burden under the FAA to show 28 (1) the existence of a valid, written agreement to arbitrate; and, if it exists, (2) that the agreement to arbitrate encompasses the dispute at issue.” Ashbey v. Archstone Prop. Mgmt., Inc., 785 F.3d 1320, 1323 (9th Cir. 2015) (citation omitted). “To evaluate the validity of an arbitration agreement, federal courts ‘should apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts.’” Ingle v. Cit. City Stores, Inc., 328 F.3d 1165, 1170 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting First Options of Chi., Inc. v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 944 (1995)). Here, it is undisputed California state law applies. See Knutson v. Sirius XM Radio Inc., 771 F.3d 559, 565 (9th Cir. 2014); see also Franchise Agreement at 34 (choice of law provision); Mot. at 15; Opp’n at 10.

III. ANALYSIS

A. Daher and Moss’s Contractual Standing to Compel Arbitration

Before the court considers whether there is a valid agreement to arbitrate, the court considers first whether defendants Daher and Moss have contractual standing to compel arbitration. Plaintiffs argue that even if the arbitration provision is enforceable, it does not extend to Daher and Moss, who are not signatories to the Franchise Agreement on behalf of Batteries Plus. Opp’n at 17. Defendants argue the arbitration provision is applicable to Daher and Moss under the equitable estoppel and agency theory. Mot. at 18; Reply at 11. In their opposition, plaintiffs do not address defendants’ agency theory. See Opp’n at 17–19.

Because arbitration is a contractual right, only parties to an arbitration agreement generally have standing to exercise their right to compel arbitration. See Britton, 4 F.3d at 744. However, a non-signatory agent for a party to the agreement may have standing to compel arbitration. See id. For example, California courts have held non-signatories who “were acting as agents” for a signatory “are entitled to the benefit of the arbitration provisions.” Dryer v. L.A. Rams, 40 Cal. 3d 406, 418 (1985) (citing Berman v. Dean Witter & Co., 44 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1004 (Ct. App. 1975)).

Plaintiffs allege Daher and Moss are respectively the Vice President of Franchise Development of Batteries Plus and Real Estate Project Manager of Batteries Plus, Compl. ¶¶ 23–24, and their alleged wrongdoings occurred while they were acting within the scope of their employment, see, e.g., id. ¶¶ 110–30. Because they are agents of Batteries Plus and their alleged misconduct relates to and are connected to the Franchise Agreement, Daher and Moss are entitled

1 to the benefits of the arbitration provision and to compel compliance with it. See, e.g., Nguyen v.
 2 Tran, 157 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1037 (2007) (collecting cases); Xinhua Holdings Ltd. v. Elec.
 3 Recyclers Int’l, Inc., No. 13-1409, 2013 WL 6844270, at *8 (E.D. Cal. Dec. 26, 2013), aff’d sub
 4 nom. Clean Tech Partners, LLC v. Elec. Recyclers Int’l, Inc., 627 F. App’x 621 (9th Cir. 2015)
 5 (same); cf. Letizia v. Prudential Bache Sec., Inc., 802 F.2d 1185, 1187 (9th Cir. 1986)
 6 (“[N]onsignatories of arbitration agreements may be bound by the agreement under ordinary 7 contract and agency principles.”).

8 Because defendants have contractual standing to move to compel under the agency theory, 9 the court declines to consider whether equitable estoppel applies. The court now considers 10 whether the parties agreed to delegate the question of arbitrability to the arbitrator.

11 B. Delegation

12 In deciding whether to compel arbitration, a court must determine the two “gateway” 13 issues identified above: “(1) whether there is an agreement to arbitrate between the parties; and 14 (2) whether the agreement covers the dispute.” Brennan v. Opus Bank, 796 F.3d 1125, 1130 15 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S. 79, 84 (2002)). These 16 issues, however, “can be expressly delegated to the arbitrator where ‘the parties clearly and 17 unmistakably provide otherwise.’” Id. (emphasis in original) (quoting AT & T Techs., Inc. v.
 18 Commc’ns Workers of Am., 475 U.S. 643, 649 (1986)).

19 Defendants, for the first time during hearing, argued there is a delegation clause in the 20 Franchise Agreement. This argument is waived and the court need not consider it. See Autotel v.
 21 Nev. Bell Tel. Co., 697 F.3d 846, 852 n.3 (9th Cir. 2012). The court nonetheless granted plaintiffs 22 an opportunity to file a surreply to address the issues of delegation, whether defendants have 23 waived the issue, and severability. Plaintiffs have submitted a surreply addressing the issues of 24 delegation and severability as to the limitation of damages. See Surreply. Plaintiffs do not argue 25 defendants waived their delegation argument, and because they have now had an opportunity to 26 fully address defendants’ arguments, the court considers the delegation question on the merits.

1 The parties do not expressly delegate the question of arbitrability to the arbitrator. At 2 hearing, defendants relied on the Supreme Court’s decision in Rent-A-Center, West, Inc. v.
 3 Jackson, 561 U.S. 63 (2010), and the Northern District of California’s decision in Saperstein v.
 4 Thomas P. Gohagan & Company, 476 F. Supp. 3d 965 (N.D. Cal. 2020), to argue there is a 5 delegation clause here. In both of these other cases, the arbitration agreements expressly 6 provided the arbitrator “shall have exclusive authority” to resolve disputes relating to the 7 agreement, “including, but not limited to any claim that all or any part of th[e] Agreement is void 8 or voidable.” Rent-A-Ctr., 561 U.S. at 68; Saperstein, 476 F. Supp. 3d at 973 (agreement 9 containing nearly identical language). Here, there is no such express language or equivalent 10 provision delegating the issue of whether the agreement is void or voidable to the arbitrator. See 11 Franchise Agreement at 33–34. Moreover, defendants explicitly noted the lack of delegation in 12 their motion, further demonstrating the parties have not clearly and unmistakably delegated the 13 question of arbitrability to the arbitrator. See Mot. at 14 (noting “[w]here an arbitration 14 agreement does not delegate the gateway issues of arbitrability to an arbitrator, as is the case here 15 ...”).

16 The question of arbitrability is thus properly before this court. The court next considers 17 the two threshold issues.

18 C. A Valid Agreement to Arbitrate Exists

19 As the party seeking to compel arbitration, defendants bear “the burden of proving the 20 existence of an agreement to arbitrate by a preponderance of the evidence.” Knutson, 771 F.3d at 21 565 (citing Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp., 14 Cal. 4th 394, 413 (1996)).

22 Plaintiffs argue defendants have not met their burden because they offer only conclusory 23 statements to show an arbitration agreement exists. Opp’n at 8–10. In California, the essential 24 elements of a contract are: “1. Parties capable of contracting; 2. Their consent; 3. A lawful object; 25 and, 4. A sufficient cause or consideration.” Cal. Civ. Code § 1550. Plaintiffs appear to dispute 26 the second element: consent. See Opp’n at 9, 15. Although they do not expressly say so, 27 plaintiffs appear to argue they did not consent to the arbitration provision because it was buried in 28 the “57-page contract,” there was no table of contents to allow Singh to quickly reference the

1 contents of the agreement, he was not represented by an attorney and there was no meeting of the 2 minds because the arbitration provision and franchise agreement present inconsistent and 3 contradictory terms. See id. at 9–10, 15–17.

4 “Mutual assent, or consent, of the parties is essential to the existence of a contract, and 5 consent is not mutual, unless the parties all agree upon the same thing in the same sense.” B.D. v.
 6 Blizzard Ent., Inc., 76 Cal. App. 5th 931, 943 (2022) (citations, marks and alterations omitted).

7 “Mutual assent is determined under an objective standard applied to the outward manifestations 8 or expressions of the parties, i.e., the reasonable meaning of their words and acts, and not their 9 unexpressed intentions or understandings.” Id. (citations and marks omitted). When there is a 10 written agreement, the parties’ “mutual intention is to be determined, whenever possible, from the 11 language of the writing alone.” Roldan v. Callahan & Blaine, 219 Cal. App. 4th 87, 93 (2013), as 12 modified (Sept. 18, 2013) (citations and marks omitted). In California, “the law effectively 13 presumes that everyone who signs a contract has read it thoroughly, whether or not that is true.” 14 Id. The court must also presume the “parties understood the agreements they sign, and that the 15 parties intended whatever the agreement objectively provides, whether or not they subjectively 16 did[.]” Id. at 93.

17 Here, defendants point to the Franchise Agreement and Assignment Agreement to show 18 Singh agreed to and executed the Franchise Agreement, which included the arbitration provision 19 in dispute. See Mot. at 15. Plaintiffs do not dispute Singh signed the agreement. See generally 20 Opp’n. In fact, Singh declares he signed the agreement and plaintiffs themselves provided a copy 21 of the signed Franchise Agreement, which includes the arbitration provision as noted above. See 22 Singh Decl. ¶ 11; Franchise Agreement; see also Compl. Ex. 1. Although Singh declares he was 23 unaware of the arbitration provision, Singh Decl. ¶ 12, and argues the arbitration provision was 24 buried in the contract, see Opp’n at 9–10, the court presumes Singh read the contract thoroughly 25 and understood the contents of the agreement, regardless of whether he was represented by 26 counsel or not, see Roldan, 219 Cal. App. 4th at 93–94.

27 Defendants have met their burden of showing a valid agreement to arbitrate exists.

D. The Arbitration Agreement Covers the Dispute

Defendants have also shown the arbitration agreement covers the parties' dispute. See Mot. at 16–17. The arbitration provision covers “all disputes, claims and controversies between the parties arising under or in connection with this Agreement or the making, performance or interpretation thereof . . . that have not been settled by or are not otherwise subject to mediation[.]” Franchise Agreement at 33. The arbitration provision is broad and covers plaintiffs' claims, which all arise under or are connected to the Franchise Agreement and the making of the agreement. See generally Compl. Plaintiffs do not dispute the arbitration agreement covers the dispute at issue. See generally Opp'n. At hearing, plaintiffs conceded this point.

Because there is a valid agreement to arbitrate and the agreement encompasses the dispute at issue, the court must enforce the arbitration agreement unless a ground for invalidation exists. See Chiron Corp. v. Ortho Diagnostic Sys., Inc., 207 F.3d 1126, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000).

E. The Arbitration Agreement Is Unconscionable

In California, “the party opposing arbitration bears the burden of proving any defense, such as unconscionability.” Poublon v. C.H. Robinson Co., 846 F.3d 1251, 1260 (9th Cir. 2017) (quoting Pinnacle Museum Tower Ass'n v. Pinnacle Mkt. Dev. (US), LLC, 55 Cal. 4th 223, 236 (2012)). To establish a defense of unconscionability, “the party opposing arbitration must demonstrate that the contract as a whole or a specific clause in the contract is both procedurally and substantively unconscionable.” Id. (citing Sanchez v. Valencia Holding Co., LLC, 61 Cal. 4th 899, 910 (2015)). Both “need not be present in the same degree,” meaning “the more substantively oppressive the contract term, the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required to come to the conclusion that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa.” Id. “[T]he core concern of the unconscionability doctrine is the absence of meaningful choice on the part of one of the parties together with contract terms which are unreasonably favorable to the other party.” Sonic-Calabasas A, Inc. v. Moreno, 57 Cal. 4th 1109, 1145 (2013) (citations and marks omitted).

1 1. Plaintiffs Have Shown Minimal Procedural Unconscionability

2 “Procedural unconscionability ‘concerns the manner in which the contract was negotiated 3 and the circumstances of the parties at that time.’” Ferguson v. Countrywide Credit Indus., Inc., 4 298 F.3d 778, 783 (9th Cir. 2002) (quoting Kinney v. United Healthcare Servs., Inc., 5 70 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1329 (1999)). Procedural unconscionability focuses on “‘oppression’ or 6 ‘surprise’ due to unequal bargaining power.” Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., 7 Inc., 24 Cal. 4th 83, 114 (2000). “‘Oppression’ arises from an inequality of bargaining power 8 which results in no real negotiation and ‘an absence of meaningful choice.’” A & M Produce Co.
9 v. FMC Corp., 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 486 (1982) (citations omitted). “‘Surprise’ involves the 10 extent to which the supposedly agreed-upon terms of the bargain are hidden in a prolix printed 11 form drafted by the party seeking to enforce the disputed terms.” Id. (citations omitted).

12 “California courts have long recognized that franchise agreements have some 13 characteristics of contracts of adhesion because of the ‘vastly superior bargaining strength’ of the 14 franchisor.” Nagrampa v. MailCoups, Inc., 469 F.3d 1257, 1282 (9th Cir. 2006) (citations 15 omitted). “An adhesion contract is indicative of procedural unconscionability because it is a 16 standardized contract drafted by the party with greater bargaining power and offered to the 17 weaker party on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.” Chin v. Advanced Fresh Concepts Franchise Corp., 18 194 Cal. App. 4th 704, 709 (2011) (citations omitted). “Such a contract will not be enforced if its 19 provisions are not within the reasonable expectations of the weaker party or if they are 20 oppressive.” Id. However, franchise agreements are not “per se unenforceable.” Indep. Assn. of 21 Mailbox Ctr. Owners, Inc. v. Super. Ct., 133 Cal. App. 4th 396, 407 (2005) (citation omitted).
22 “Because a franchise agreement is made in a commercial context where arbitration is quite 23 common, and reasonably to be anticipated, absent some special element of unfair advantage an 24 arbitration provision in a franchise agreement may be enforced though the agreement is 25 adhesive.” Chin, 194 Cal. App. at 710 (citation and marks omitted).

26 Plaintiffs argue the arbitration provision is procedurally unconscionable for the following 27 four reasons: 1) Singh had no meaningful opportunity to negotiate and had no bargaining power; 28 2) he did not have enough time to review the agreement; 3) the lack of table of contents made it impossible for Singh to reference and understand the terms of the agreement; 4) and he had already paid the first installment of the initial franchise fee. Opp’n at 11–12.

Here, plaintiffs have shown evidence of minimal procedural unconscionability. There is evidence of oppression because the Franchise Agreement was wholly drafted by Battery Plus, which unquestionably had greater bargaining power, and the agreement was presented on a take-it-or-leave-it basis leaving Singh with no reasonable opportunity to negotiate. See, e.g., Nagraampa, 469 F.3d at 1284; Starace v. Lexington L. Firm, No. 18-01596, 2019 WL 2642555, at *7 (E.D. Cal. June 27, 2019) (slight procedural unconscionability due to adhesive nature of agreement).

“[S]urprise need not be demonstrated if the court determines that the arbitration provision of an adhesive contract is oppressive.” Nagraampa, 469 F.3d at 1284. However, the court considers surprise as a factor to determine the level of procedural unconscionability. Here, plaintiffs have shown minimal evidence of surprise. Singh received a copy of both the 2021 and 2022 FDDs well before he signed the Franchise Agreement. See 2021 FDD (received more than three months prior to signing Franchise Agreement); 2022 FDD (received two weeks prior to signing Franchise Agreement). Regardless of whether he actually reviewed the documents, both contained disclosures regarding the arbitration provision and attached a copy of the Franchise Agreement, which included the arbitration provisions. The FDDs in both disclosures note in bold “Special Risks to Consider About This Franchise,” and highlight the out-of-state dispute resolution. 2021 FDD at v; 2022 FDD at v. Even though Singh declares he thought he needed to sign the Franchise Agreement the date it was sent to him, Singh Decl. ¶¶ 9–10, he had plenty of time to review and understand the disclosures and arbitration provision. But there is some element of surprise, in that the arbitration provision was buried in the lengthy Franchise Agreement and did not appear until page 32 of the 57-page agreement. See id. ¶ 12; Opp’n at 11; see also Nagraampa, 469 F.3d at 1283–84; Gavigan v. Ameriprise Fin. Servs., Inc., No. 10-01224, 2011 WL 13267998, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 10, 2011) (finding contract exhibited element of surprise where arbitration provision appeared on “pages 37 and 38 of a 39-page agreement”); Jaiswal v. Dickey’s Barbecue Rests., Inc., No. 23-1921, 2024 WL 607370, at *5 (C.D. Cal.

Jan. 18, 2024) (“The Court agrees that the franchise agreements’ length—over 60 single-spaced pages, with the arbitration provision tucked in the middle—weighs in favor of procedural unconscionability.”).

Here, plaintiffs have shown minimal procedural unconscionability. Defendants conceded as much during hearing. Because the procedural unconscionability of the agreement is minimal, the agreement must reflect a high degree of substantive unconscionability to be unenforceable on this ground. See Poubon, 846 F.3d at 1263.

2. Plaintiffs Have Shown Some Substantive Unconscionability

Substantive unconscionability focuses on “‘overly harsh’ or ‘one-sided’ results.” Armendariz, 24 Cal. 4th at 114. “California law requires an arbitration agreement to have a ‘modicum of bilaterality,’ and arbitration provisions that are ‘unfairly one-sided’ are substantively unconscionable[.]” Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1281 (internal citations omitted). Plaintiffs argue the arbitration agreement is substantively unconscionable for four main reasons: 1) it gives Battery Plus access to a judicial forum while restricting plaintiffs to the arbitral forum; 2) it restricts the venue to Milwaukee, Wisconsin; 3) it unreasonably restricts the arbitrator from awarding exemplary or punitive damages; and 4) it contains an unenforceable class action/joiner waiver. Opp’n at 12–15.

The court finds plaintiffs have shown the lack of mutuality as to a judicial forum and restriction on damages are substantively unconscionable. However, the venue restriction and class action/joiner waiver are not substantively unconscionable. The court considers the substantively unconscionable provisions first.

First, the one-sided arbitral forum provision is substantively unconscionable because it lacks mutuality. “Where the party with stronger bargaining power has restricted the weaker party to the arbitral forum, but reserved for itself the ability to seek redress in either an arbitral or judicial forum, California courts have found a lack of mutuality supporting substantive unconscionability.” Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1285. In Armendariz, in determining whether an arbitration clause in an employment contract was unconscionable, the Court of Appeal found, “if an employer does have reasonable justification for the arrangement — i.e., a justification

1 grounded in something other than the employer’s desire to maximize its advantage based on the 2 perceived superiority of the judicial forum — such an agreement would not be unconscionable.” 3 24 Cal. 4th at 120. “Without such justification, we must assume that it is.” Id.

4 Here, the Franchise Agreement provides “all disputes, claims and controversies between 5 the parties arising under or in connection with [the] Agreement or the making, performance or 6 interpretation thereof . . . that have not been settled by or are not otherwise subject to mediation” 7 must be resolved by arbitration. Franchise Agreement at 33. However, the arbitration provision 8 exempts the franchisor from this provision in the event the franchisor elects to enforce the 9 provisions of the Franchise Agreement by seeking an injunction. Id. The injunction provision 10 provides if a franchisee “breaches or threatens to breach any of the terms of this Agreement,” the 11 franchisor “will be entitled to an injunction restraining such breach and/or a decree of specific 12 performance[.]” Id. at 34. Thus, while Battery Plus may seek an injunction in a judicial forum 13 for any breaches or threats of breaches to the Franchise Agreement, plaintiffs would not have the 14 same right to seek an injunction for Battery Plus’s breaches in a judicial forum.

15 Defendants argue the injunctive relief carve-out is justified because a franchisee’s “failure 16 to comply with certain system standards (such as misuse of registered trademarks or selling 17 inferior unapproved products) could cause irreparable harm to Batteries Plus, its other 18 franchisees, or even their consumers” and thus, “Batteries Plus must have the ability to seek 19 immediate injunctive relief to prevent irreparable harm without going through the ADR process.” 20 Reply at 8. However, the carve-out in the agreement itself is not so narrowly drawn. Batteries 21 Plus may seek an injunction for any breach or any threat of breach of the Franchise Agreement, 22 not merely provisions that may uniquely harm Batteries Plus. Cf. Tompkins v. 23andMe, Inc., 23 840 F.3d 1016, 1031 (9th Cir. 2016) (one-sided contract to provide extra margin of safety for one 24 party based on legitimate business needs not necessarily unconscionable).

25 Moreover, defendants do not explain why Batteries Plus could not obtain similar relief in 26 an arbitral forum. For example, defendants argue there is mutuality because the arbitration 27 provision does not prohibit Singh from seeking injunctive relief in arbitration. Reply at 8 (citing 28 American Arbitration Association rule permitting an arbitrator to provide injunctive relief). But

1 defendants do not explain why they must be permitted to pursue an injunction in a judicial forum 2 while plaintiffs cannot. Here, defendants have not shown there is a reasonable justification for 3 the injunction carve out. See Bridge Fund Cap. Corp. v. Fastbucks Franchise Corp., 4 No. 08-00767, 2008 WL 3876341, at *8 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 2008), aff'd and remanded, 5 622 F.3d 996 (9th Cir. 2010). The lack of mutuality renders the arbitration provision 6 substantively unconscionable. See, e.g., Martinez v. Master Prot. Corp., 118 Cal. App. 4th 107, 7 115 (2004) (lack of mutuality where employer retained right to seek injunctive relief in judicial 8 forum while denying employees the same); O'Hare v. Mun. Res. Consultants, 107 Cal. App. 4th 9 267, 279 (2003) (holding similarly); Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1286 (same).

10 Second, the restriction against punitive or exemplary damages also is substantively 11 unconscionable. "The principle that an arbitration agreement may not limit statutorily imposed 12 remedies such as punitive damages and attorney fees appears to be undisputed." Armendariz, 13 24 Cal. 4th at 103. Here, the arbitration provision prohibits the arbitrator from awarding 14 exemplary or punitive damages. Franchise Agreement at 33, 35. Defendants "do not refute" the 15 "punitive damages waiver is substantively unconscionable under California law," Reply at 9, and 16 conceded this point during hearing.

17 Although two provisions are substantively unconscionable, plaintiffs have not shown the 18 venue restriction is unconscionable. The California Supreme Court has held "forum selection 19 clauses are valid and may be given effect, in the court's discretion and in the absence of a 20 showing that enforcement of such a clause would be unreasonable." Smith, Valentino & Smith, 21 Inc. v. Super. Ct., 17 Cal. 3d 491, 496 (1976). "However, if the 'place and manner' restrictions of 22 a forum selection provision are 'unduly oppressive,' or have the effect of shielding the stronger 23 party from liability, then the forum selection provision is unconscionable." Nagrampa, 24 469 F.3d at 1287 (internal citations omitted). To determine whether a "place and manner" 25 restriction is reasonable, the court considers "the respective circumstances of the parties[.]" 26 Bolter v. Super. Ct., 87 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909 (2001), as modified on denial of reh'g (Mar. 30, 27 2001). "Mere inconvenience" or "additional expense" does not invalidate a forum selection 28 clause. Smith, Valentino & Smith, Inc., 17 Cal. 3d at 496.

Here, plaintiffs argue the venue restriction is “unduly burdensome” and “contrary to applicable California law.” Opp’n at 13. However, plaintiffs do not explain how or why the restriction is unduly burdensome. Contra, e.g., Bolter, 87 Cal. App. 4th at 909 (costs of travel, accommodations, hiring counsel familiar with different state’s law, and closing business to litigate matter outside of California would result in significant hardship); Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1289 (same). Plaintiffs have not provided any evidence of hardship. For example, there is no affidavit explaining why arbitrating in Wisconsin would be unduly burdensome. Additionally, plaintiffs should have reasonably anticipated arbitration in a different state given the information presented to Singh before he signed. Both the 2021 and 2022 FDDs note in bold “Special Risks to Consider About This Franchise” and alert prospective franchisees to the out-of-state dispute resolution. 2021 FDD at v; 2022 FDD at v; see also 2021 FDD at 41 (provision “u” explaining venue restriction); 2022 FDD at 42 (same). Both the FDDs and the Franchise Agreement Singh signed contained the arbitration provision, which included the venue restriction. See 2021 Agreement Copy; 2022 Agreement Copy; Franchise Agreement at 33. Defendants’ disclosures and the Franchise Agreement itself provide adequate notice that franchisees were agreeing to arbitrate in Wisconsin. See, e.g., Tompkins, 840 F.3d at 1029; cf. Bolter, 87 Cal. App. 4th at 909 (explaining petitioner would never have anticipated litigating disputes out-of-state); Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1290 (same).

To the extent plaintiffs argue the venue restriction is unconscionable because it is contrary to applicable California law, that argument is unpersuasive. As plaintiffs note, the California Business and Professions Code provides in relevant part: “A provision in a franchise agreement restricting venue to a forum outside this state is void with respect to any claim arising under or relating to a franchise agreement involving a franchise business operating within this state.” Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 20040.5. The venue restriction is contrary to this state law provision. See Opp’n at 14–16. However, the FAA preempts section 20040.5. See Bradley v. Harris Rsch., Inc., 275 F.3d 884, 892 (9th Cir. 2001), abrogated in part on other grounds by Sakkab v. Luxottica Retail N. Am., Inc., 803 F.3d 425 (9th Cir. 2015); Meadows v. Dickey’s Barbecue Rests. Inc., 144 F. Supp. 3d 1069, 1081 n.6 (N.D. Cal. 2015).

1 Finally, the class action/joiner waiver also is permissible and not unconscionable. As the 2 Supreme Court held in AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, the FAA preempts California’s rule 3 rendering class action waivers unenforceable as unconscionable. 563 U.S. 333, 352 (2011); see 4 also Carter v. Rent-A-Ctr., Inc., 718 F. App’x 502, 504 (9th Cir. 2017) (unpublished) (“We have 5 interpreted Concepcion as foreclosing any argument that a class action waiver, by itself, is 6 unconscionable under state law or that an arbitration agreement is unconscionable solely because 7 it contains a class action waiver.”). Plaintiffs conceded this point during hearing.

8 For the reasons above, plaintiffs have shown the arbitration provision here includes 9 elements that are substantively unconscionable.

10 F. The Unconscionable Provisions Can be Severed

11 Because the arbitration provision in the Franchise Agreement is both procedurally and 12 substantively unconscionable, the court next considers whether the unconscionable provisions are 13 severable. The Franchise Agreement contains a severability clause, which states, “[a]ll provisions 14 of this Agreement are severable and this Agreement will be interpreted and enforced as if all 15 completely invalid or unenforceable provisions were not contained herein and partially valid and 16 enforceable provisions will be enforced to the extent valid and enforceable.” Franchise 17 Agreement at 34. California law also provides:

18 If the court as a matter of law finds the contract or any clause of the 19 contract to have been unconscionable at the time it was made the 20 court may refuse to enforce the contract, or it may enforce the 21 remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or it 22 may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid 23 any unconscionable result.

24 Cal. Civ. Code § 1670.5(a).

25 Here, the court finds it can sever the unconscionable provisions from the Franchise 26 Agreement. See Armendariz, 24 Cal. 4th at 123–24. Both parties agree, as they confirmed at 27 hearing, that the restrictions on damages can be severed from the arbitration provision. See Reply
 28 at 9; Surreply at 6. The court severs the waiver of punitive damages from the Franchise 29 Agreement and the section preventing the arbitrator from assessing punitive or exemplary

1 damages. See Franchise Agreement at 33, 35. As to the injunctive relief provision, the court 2 finds that provision also can be severed without reforming the parties' agreement. See id. at 33.
 3 With only minimal procedural unconscionability and the severance of the substantively 4 unconscionable provisions, the court finds the arbitration agreement is valid.

5 G. Motion to Dismiss or Stay The Action

6 Defendants request the court to compel arbitration and dismiss the action, or alternatively, 7 stay the proceedings pending arbitration. Mot. at 19–20. Section 3 of the FAA provides once a 8 court determines an issue is subject to arbitration, the court “shall on application of one of the 9 parties stay the trial of the action until such arbitration has been had[.]” 9 U.S.C. § 3. However, 10 the Ninth Circuit has held “that notwithstanding the language of § 3, a district court may either 11 stay the action or dismiss it outright when, as here, the court determines that all of the claims 12 raised in the action are subject to arbitration.” Johnmohammadi v. Bloomingdale's, Inc., 13 755 F.3d 1072, 1073–74 (9th Cir. 2014).

14 Plaintiffs do not address whether the court should dismiss the action in its entirety or stay 15 the action pending arbitration. See generally Opp'n. Because all of plaintiffs' claims are subject 16 to arbitration, and the court cannot discern any reason to stay the action, the court exercises its 17 discretion to dismiss the action without prejudice. See Villa v. Gruma Corp., No. 19-01721, 18 2020 WL 433098, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2020) (holding similarly and collecting cases).

19 IV. CONCLUSION

20 The court severs the restriction on damages and the injunctive relief provision from the 21 Franchise Agreement as noted above and otherwise grants the motion to compel arbitration 22 without those severed provisions in effect. This action is dismissed without prejudice.

23 The Court of Clerk is directed to close this case.

24 This order resolves ECF No. 8.
